Consequences of Sending A DMCA Notice

Upon receiving your notice, WebHostingM will assess its accuracy, validity, and completeness. If it meets these criteria, we will communicate the notice to the customer or user linked to the allegedly infringing material. The poster of the material may issue a counter-notice under Section 512(g)(3) of the DMCA if they believe the material is not infringing or they hold the right to use it.

Be advised that under 17 U.S.C. § 512(f), you may face liability for damages, including costs and attorney's fees, if you knowingly and materially misrepresent that material or activity is infringing. Before submitting a DMCA notice, confirm that you are the rightful copyright holder (or are authorized to act on behalf of the owner), that you genuinely believe the material you have identified is infringing, and that you understand the consequences of making a false claim.

Repeat Infringer Policy

In line with DMCA requirements, WebHostingM will terminate the accounts of subscribers who repeatedly infringe upon the copyrights of others, as deemed appropriate under the circumstances.
